Brilliant Light Energy

In Light Wellness Systems® provides a dynamic and user-friendly polychromatic light energy system intended for clinical, professional and home user applications.

Light energy is not only essential to life, it provides powerful support to the body's natural healing processes. LED light energy, delivered via light emitting diodes at various wavelengths, penetrates tissue at different depths and is naturally absorbed by the cells to assist in the production of ATP (adenosine triphosphate), energy required for cell repair and regeneration.

LED light energy application also facilitates the release of Nitric Oxide, a natural response, supporting the body with improved circulation. Improved circulation (blood flow) is one of the most vital components of the healing process. LED polychromatic light energy is a valuable tool in restoring and improving health and vitality.
